Sandy Angus is Chairman of Andry Montgomery Ltd, who were one of the earliest pioneers in the field of running international shows around the world. Andry Montgomery is the holding company for a group of international companies in the field of exhibition organising, venue management and consultancy as well as investing in other exhibition related companies. Several of the exhibitions organised by this company, including the IFE brand, are part of the widely renowned Montgomery Group and these include events in India, China, South Africa, Hong Kong, Russia, Poland, Hungary, USA, Libya as well as the UK and Ireland. Andry Montgomery are also major shareholders in the Expo Centre venue in Johannesburg.

Sandy Angus has worked in the exhibition industry since 1968. This has involved working in roles at every level of the business and in every individual specialisation and on all 5 continents.

He is a past President of the Union des Foires International, where he remains a Director; he is past Chairman of the Dallas-based International Association of Exhibition Managers (IAEM) and is a former Chairman of the Association of Exhibition Organisers in the UK.

His networking contacts with every major organiser and venue throughout the world are without parallel and he therefore has a very contemporary assessment of the global trends in the world of exhibitions. He lectures extensively throughout the world extolling the virtues of exhibitions and the wealth creating benefits which they bring to the cities in which they take place.

He is a Freeman of the City of London. He was Master of the Worshipful Company of Tylers and Bricklayers 2004/5

Through the London School of Health and Tropical Hygiene he is involved in treatment of malnutrition and has been involved in the education and funding of various projects to minimise the global mortality rate in this field
